

THE UNIVERSITY
OF AUCKLAND
FACULTY OF MEDICAL AND HEALTH SCIENCES

COURSES OF INTEREST TO NURSES

POSTGRADUATE STUDY AT THE SCHOOL OF POPULATION HEALTH

WHY STUDY AT THE SCHOOL OF POPULATION HEALTH?

At the School of Population Health we offer a range of courses that complement programmes run by the School of Nursing. The emphasis in the School lies on community care and primary health aspects of the work of nurses and other health professionals.

Of particular interest to mental health nurses is the Alcohol and Drug Studies programme, for which the fees are fully funded by the government.

We also offer public health programmes in health services and health management for nurses in senior administrative positions.

WHAT PROGRAMMES OF STUDY MAY I TAKE THESE COURSES TOWARDS?

It is possible to take our courses towards postgraduate programmes in nursing, health sciences or public health - advice should be sought from academics in the relevant subject area.

WHERE WILL MY POSTGRADUATE STUDIES LEAD ME?

These courses give you not only an advanced theoretical understanding of your chosen specialisation but also the practical skills required to more effectively help with your clients. With increasing demands for specialist practitioners and the professionalisation of nurses, our courses are a pre-requisite for your successful career in these areas.

WHAT SUBJECT AREAS CAN I STUDY AT THE SCHOOL OF POPULATION HEALTH?

- Alcohol and Drug Studies/Dual Diagnosis
- Therapeutic Communication
- Gerontology
- Health Promotion
- Maori Health
- Mental Health Development
- Pacific Health
- Palliative Care
- Public Health
- Primary Health Lifestyle Management
- Sexual and Reproductive Health
- Youth Health

INTERESTED? TAKE YOUR NEXT CAREER STEP AND CONTACT US NOW.

For more details, including individual course outlines, visit our website below and click on a subject area in the postgraduate subject list. From here you can also reach us online, just click on Expression of Interest and fill in your details and we will contact you.

For academic advice on programme selection contact

Ann McKillop,
School of Nursing
a.mckillop@auckland.ac.nz

0800 61 62 63

www.health.auckland.ac.nz

www.health.auckland.ac.nz/population-health/postgrad

Celebrate
THINKING